What the press is saying about Dijon:

"warm, dripping globs of time-softened imagery that you'll want to submerge yourself in"
The FADER

"has the voice that cuts through to your soul and his songwriting is beyond his years"
Hypebeast

"Dijon's take on R&B is lovingly worn and incredibly special"

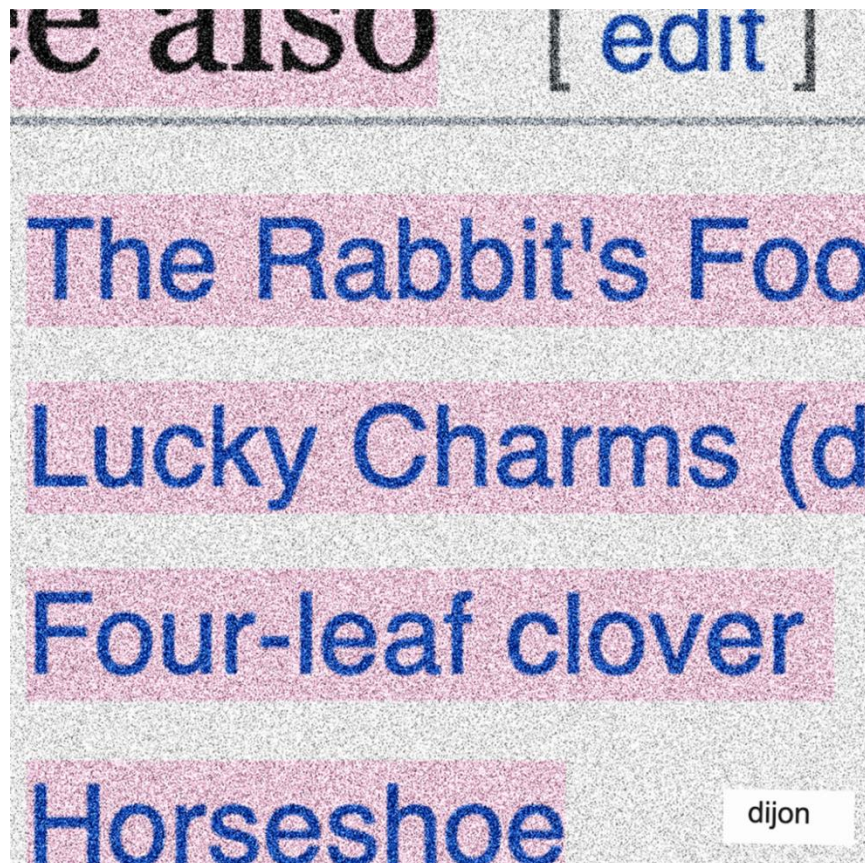

Noisey

September 27, 2019 (Los Angeles) – Today, Los Angeles-based, Baltimore-raised artist Dijon Duenas shares a new song. Released with an accompanying lyric video, "Good Luck" is a fleeting and achingly tender moment that has been a fan favorite in Dijon's early live performances. The non-traditional release contains only a few short verses, pushing the artist's capabilities as a vocalist and songwriter immediately to the forefront. Both sonically and emotionally, "Good Luck" feels like an epilogue to his debut EP from earlier this year, the intimate R&B and folk tinged Sci Fi 1.

Dijon shares that "Good Luck" is "a song about how it hurts to look backwards sometimes. Wishing the best, always."

This year saw Dijon bring his gripping live show to the world for the first time, impressing fans and fellow musicians alike. Among those new fans are budding star Omar Apollo and indie heroes Vampire Weekend – both of who have tapped him to support them on upcoming tours. Dijon's North American tour supporting Apollo begins on November 2nd in Oakland. The 12-date run will hit El Paso, Chicago, Toronto and New York before closing out the year in Atlanta on December 15th. He will then embark on Vampire Weekend's summer North American tour in 2020, opening up six of their shows. See full tour details below.

Check out "Good Luck" and Sci Fi 1 and stay tuned for more from Dijon coming soon.
