March 29, 2024 (Los Angeles, CA) –Today, burgeoning singer, songwriter, and producer sombr shares a brand new single entitled “i’ll remember tonight” out now via Warner Records – listen HERE.

Painting a vivid and vibrant picture, cinematic piano underlines soft verses assombr sets the scene, “I took you home, you were unknown” The energy amplifies as waves of guitar uplift a hypnotic refrain awash in shoegaze-style distortion. The track instantly transfixes with evocative storytelling and expansive loud-soft dynamics steeped in nineties catharsis.

It arrives on the heels of “in your arms.” Around his recent sold-out New York show at Baby’s All Right, Atwood Magazine christened him “the rising indie prince of heartbreak” and Off The Record Press raved, “Each song is sonically moving with his impeccable touch for composition, adding in soft notes of instruments when needed, such as piano and guitar.”

Surrounded by music since childhood, sombr has gleaned inspiration from his days at legendary public performing arts school LaGuardia High, a fascination with classical music, and countless nights writing and recording out of a bedroom studio in his childhood home in the Lower East Side of New York City. He notably introduced himself with a series of independent fan favorite singles before breakout track “Caroline” cracked 32 million-plus streams on Spotify alone.

ABOUT sombr:

At 14 years old, Shane became sombr via a make-shift recording studio in his bedroom funded by a summer of scooping ice cream. The now 18-year-old honed his talents at New York’s LaGuardia High, the public performing arts school celebrated for inspiring the film Fame, spending his days studying classical music and nights invested in his bedroom studio.

While other high school juniors obsessed over driving tests or dates, sombr recorded romantic indie-rock melodies while trawling for like-minded musicians to sign to his label. When COVID hit, creating music became an escape for the young artist from the physical and social isolation brought on by the pandemic - all leading sombr to launch his own major label imprint while his single "Caroline" earned over a million listens within its first week. Still, the artist project sombr remains the most passionate about is his own, and rightly so. "Caroline" and "Willow" have become sad girl anthems — populating Zillennial playlists across Spotify. Informed by the alt-pop greats – from Bon Iver to Phoebe Bridgers – the singer-songwriter's newer releases are certain to cement the artist's ascension, though sombr says he'd be happy enough with a "timeless alternative project."
